Apitua Bell

This small iron Apitua Bell is hand forged in West Africa by experienced blacksmiths.

It is also known as a Banana Bell, Toke or Atoke Bell. This small Apitua bell is 6 inches long.

Since these Apitua bells are hand crafted, the measurements can vary slightly. Often played with the Djun Djun drums by attaching to the top of the drum through the lacing. They are also simply held in the hand and played.

The Apitua Bell is played with an iron striker which is included.