Japanese Umbrella/Parasol

In recent years the Japanese umbrellas are fundamental in Kabuki, tea ceremony, Japanese dancing, traditional ceremonies and festivals in shrines and temples. The Japanese umbrella is made with Japanese paper (Washi) or silk cloth with bamboo bones.

There are three types of Wagasa: an umbrella (Wagasa), a parasol for dancing (Maigasa) and a parasol (Higasa).

Maigasa is a parasol for dancing. It is used for Japanese dancing and folk songs, which is light and easy to use for dancing. The beautifully designed parasols are not just for dancing but are useful and make your life's various occasions rich and colourful.

Higasa - This parasol is not greased and has a vivid colour. It adds colour to the various life events like wedding ceremony and the seven-five-three festival.
